"PULLING TOGETHER"
Two old mules, now get this dope. Were tied together with a piece of rope.

Said one to the other, "You come my way. While I take a nibble of new hay."

"I won't," said the other, "You come with me. For I, too, have some hay you see."

So they got nowhere, just pawed up dirt. And how, how that old rope did hurt! Then they faced about those stubborn mules.

And said, "We're just too much like human fools. Let's pull together; I'll go your way. Then come with me and we'll both eat hay."

Well, they ate their hay and liked it, too. And swore to be comrades good and true.

As the sun went down they were heard to say, "Ah, this is the end of a perfect day—We must pull together—'tis the only way."

INTERESTING CHARACTER HERE
Chief Eagle Eye a half breed Cherokee Indian, 70 years old, passed through Morgan County the fore part of the week enroute to Louisville.

He was born on the Cherokee reservation, at Ardmore, Oklahoma, attended school at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, and received a medical diploma from that school. He is a Spanish American War Veteran and served in the medical corps in the World War. He has been doing stunts like this for years and enjoys it. He accepts no food nor even a drink of water without paying for it. Persons who met Eagle Eye say he is a very interesting and intelligent person to talk to.

MANY THRILLING SPECTACULAR ACTS TO BE SEEN WITH CIRCUS COMING MAY 21

The Mighty Hag Show, which is celebrating its Golden Jubilee Year, is presenting one of the biggest and best performances that has ever been witnessed in West Liberty.

This year the Mighty Hag Show, which will give two performances in West Liberty, on Saturday, May 21, at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m., opens the performance with a grand spectacular pageant entitled "A Night In Spain" in which over 300 people and animals in gold and silver mingled with bright-colored costumes and trappings, take part. "A Night In Spain" is truly a thrilling spectacle from the girls who lead the way deftly spraying wild garlands down through the wild animals that are lead and carried ending up with "Monter," the famous butterfly dancer who was brought to this country by the Mighty Hag Show from Spain for the Golden Jubilee tour.

The Mighty Hag Show is presenting for the first time in America, "The Great Norman," who hangs from a high trapeze by one foot while he holds a long bar by the other foot on which four girls do aerial acts from trapeze hanging on the bar.

Following is "Tarzan," the Human Ape, that does everything but talk. He dresses, eats, drinks, rides bicycles, and in fact, does everything that a human does except talk. The Valentines present one of the most sensational bicycle acts ever seen with any show.

Other thrilling acts seen with the Mighty Hag Show are: Senorita Bonhomme, who slides from the top of the huge tent on a thin wire; Watkins' trained dogs and ponies; "Golden Butterflys" featuring Mlle. Pauline in a sensational aerial act; "Judy" the only baby elephant seen with any show and the greatest sensational elephant act in the world featuring Miss Helen Hag who places her body in the mouth of Alice, the world's largest performing elephant, and allows herself to be carried from one end to the other end of the big tent.

Dr. Murray took John Leach to the Lexington hospital yesterday for a physical examination.

COURIER OFFICE WEDDING

The Courier office was the scene of a quiet wedding on Friday of last week when Miss Clarice Caskey became the bride of Levi M. Reeder, with Roscoe Brong, pastor of the West Liberty Baptist church, officiating.

Miss Caskey had at various times visited with relatives at Norwalk, Ohio, and in this way had met Mr. Reeder and the romance followed and has terminated in a happy wedding.

The editor of the Courier and Miss Helen O. Price were witnesses to the ceremony.

PARENTS VS. CRIME

It is significant that a survey by the New Jersey Juvenile Delinquency Commission to determine the underlying causes of crime revealed a large proportion of inmates started their careers as juvenile delinquents. Such a seemingly harmless practice as truancy was discovered to have been the beginning of many lawless careers.

In his book, "The Gang," one of the University of Chicago Sociological Series, Prof. Frederic M. Thrasher writes:

The process of demoralization often begins in "playing hooky" which in itself seems innocent enough. A lot of the fun in sneaking away from school is in going "wid de gang"; boys seldom "bum" from school alone. The gang invites truancy and truancy encourages the gang. Many parents dismiss such "boyish stunts" as simply the exuberance of youth and sometimes go so far as to excuse or condone minor acts of vandalism which, although trivial in the beginning, ultimate in conflict with the law.

Such organizations as the Boy Scouts and the Boys Clubs are doing much to satisfy the "gang instinct" in boys and to teach them respect of law. But the best place to check juvenile delinquency is still in the home. It's a wise parent who can find the middle road and balance a discipline which commands respect for authority with an attitude which allows for individual initiative and freedom of expression. The parent with that for a goal makes a definite contribution to crime prevention.—The Christian Science Monitor.

FARMERS' COLUMN

CULTIVATION

All that a gardener may do for the welfare of his vegetables, and provided he has prepared his ground properly and fertilized it, is to keep them clean of weeds.

Weeds are unsavory companions for vegetables, for several reasons. One is that they rob the crops of moisture. A plentiful supply of moisture is important because so much of quality in vegetables depends on their having been grown rapidly, and because all the vegetables consist so largely of water. Another reason weeds should be banished from a vegetable garden is that they attract the first insects and serve as places where they may multiply against the time their vegetable favorites are put in. Still another is that they serve as hosts for plant diseases, which both them apparently not at all, but which play havoc with the vegetables, softened by "civilization."

Accordingly, keeping the garden weed-free cannot be over-emphasized, on many counts, but only one need be discussed, to wit, that of conserving moisture. This is important enough at any time, but it becomes more important as the season progresses and the rains fall and rising temperatures increase the evaporation of the dwindling moisture. Cultivation is the means to use.

This word "cultivation" is used instead of the older one, "working," because it is a more pleasing word, but also because it describes a procedure quite different. Whereas, by "working" is meant deep stirring of the soil, which, by the way, many of the weeds escape, cultivation, both the word and the process, has been adopted to mean a mere skimming of the surface, just deep enough to upset the smaller weeds, and to cut off those whose roots lie deeper. It is obvious that the smaller the weeds are, the easier it is to destroy them. The smaller the weeds, too, the less moisture has been taken from the vegetables.

A good tool to use is the hand hoe, the blade shaving the surface or penetrating it just shallowly. A better tool, and one much more speedy, is a garden plow fitted with side-hoes. These are blades so attached to the frame of the plow that when it is moved forward, the soil surface is skimmed, or stirred to a depth no greater than one inch.

This sort of cultivation leaves the soil surface level; and this is as it should be. There should be no hills or ridges made about the plants, as being too much work and harmful to the vegetables in several ways. Always hot, dry soil is drawn against the stems, and the deep moist soil from the "middles" is exposed to the sun to dry out. In borrowing soil to make the hills, sometimes roots are laid bare or left lying so close to the surface that moisture is insufficient. Besides, the increased area of the hills and ridges offers just that much more surface from which evaporation of moisture may take place.

To sum up: Cultivate the garden shallowly but completely enough to get all the weeds and often enough to have only small weeds to uproot, and keep the surface level.

DEAD SON COMES HOME

About a year ago a young man giving the name "Jimmy Scott" and known to only a few persons was "accidentally" killed in a darkened room while playing with the other young folks, a kissing game, called "post office" at Olive Hill.

The body was buried at Olive Hill. Mrs. Raymond Fiore of Masontown, Pa., whose son had disappeared a short time before, came to Olive Hill had the body exhumed, identified it as her son, and removed it to her home place and buried it there.

On Mother's Day, this year, Donald, the missing son, returned to his home in apparent ignorance of the trouble and anxiety he had caused his parents.

WASHINGTON NOTES

SILVER
The reinforced-concrete structure at West Point, New York, designed as a depository of the silver bullion of the government, is about ready to receive the 1,600,000,000 ounces of silver which has been accumulated by the Treasury. The capacity of the vault is about 2,000,000,000 ounces, equivalent to 20,000 tons.

PACIFIC BASES

The Government will spend, under a pending bill, $28,000,000 for the creation of a naval air station at Kodiak Island, Alaska; for improved facilities for seaplanes and vessels at Hawaii and for the establishment of an air base at Midway Island half way across the Pacific. The strengthening of our base at Hawaii and the development of the Midway Air Base, 1,172 miles northwest of Pearl Harbor, is a part of our defenses in the ocean.

The new base off the Alaskan peninsula means the establishment of an air station in recognition of the strategic importance of the Aleutian Islands, which are closer to the Great Circle route to the Far East than Hawaii. Consequently this new base would be an important link in defense of the West Coast and Alaska from any possible attack.

HOUSING

A survey of housing conditions, including a canvass of 740,000 urban households in 83 representative cities in 1935 and 1936, conducted by the United States Public Health Service, indicates that considerably more than "one-third of the nation" lives on a basis below suitable living standards. Using the figures of the survey as a base, it is estimated that three million urban families have fewer rooms in their homes than there are persons, about one million live in dwellings with more than one and a half times as many persons as there are rooms, and 700,000 live in dwellings with at least twice as many persons as there are rooms.

WPA

Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, recently recounted the accomplishments of the WPA. He reported that it has completed 43,000 miles of new roads and improved 119,000 culverts; 105 new bridges; 185,000 culverts; 105 new airports; 12,000 new schools, and other public buildings. 15,000 small dams and 10,000 miles of water and sewer lines; its workers have planted 10,000,000 trees and improved millions of acres of land.

MUNITIONS

China and Japan continue to be the principal purchasers of munitions of war in the United States. In April, China bought munitions valued at $2,527,161 and Japan spent in this country $1,889,024. All purchases for both of these nations are for military and commercial airplanes, parts and engines.

ISLANDS

The United States and Great Britain are said to be approaching an agreement for joint jurisdiction over Canton and Enderbury, islands in the Central Pacific which both nations claim. Afterwards, it is expected to take up the status of other small islands which dot the Pacific in order to settle all issues between the two governments. The Pacific islands, which for many years have been considered worthless, have become prominent on account of the increasing importance of aerial transportation.

VINSON RETIRES TO BENCH

"There is always much talk of judges retiring from the bench, but Congressman Fred Vinson furnishes a different example. He is retiring from Congress to become a Federal judge on the United States Court of Appeals, a lifetime appointment at a salary of $12,500 annually.

Kentuckians have been proud of Congressman Vinson, who won praise for his record as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and for his work in drafting the new tax bill. His associates in the House, Democratic and Republican, have repeatedly commented favorably upon his work and press and magazines have rated him as one of Congress' ablest men.

As a true blue Democrat, Kentuckians are proud of him, his increasing majorities in his district testifying to his hold on the affections of his followers in the Eighth District. He was one of the few honest prohibitionists the writer knew of in politics. His only defeat for Congress in fourteen years was in 1928 when he chose to support Al Smith, the wet Democratic candidate, when, if he pussy-footed on prohibition and religious prejudice, he could have kept his seat. Congressman Vinson did the honorable thing and went down with the ship. We salute him as one prohibitionist who was sincere, and as a statesman who is a credit to Kentucky.—Kentucky Irish American.

NO MONOPOLY

The police departments of a number of large cities have taken upon themselves the formation of organizations among the small children of the cities.

As a consequence, relations between the "cops" and the small "kids" is much improved. Juvenile delinquency, it is reported, shows a marked decline where such work is being done.

In their efforts to become friends with the young people of their cities, the police promote recreation, including athletic events, plays, minstrels and musical programs. They find that this activity pays dividends in improved behavior on the part of young people.

We have frequently heard the police praised for work with the boys and girls of their cities. Men and women express their approval of the efforts of the police to be pals with children. Adults who give their praise to the uniformed protectors of society seldom realize that the police have no monopoly on this wise friendship with children.

If police officials in large cities find it worthwhile to associate with and develop the children, it would seem to be equally plain that adults in other towns and cities would find the same activities profitable. Men and women in Morgan County who read this might ask themselves whether it would be profitable for the adults of this community to follow the example of the metropolitan policemen.

People's Column

AGAINST SUNDAY CIRCUS

The town of West Liberty, Kentucky, is not able to afford lights on its streets, because of lack of funds.

It has an ordinance providing for license fees for the people of the town who are in business, merchants, lawyers, doctors, hotels, restaurants, rooming houses, etc., including vendors and circuses. The authorities have repeatedly refused to permit apple trucks, etc., to sell their wares in town without paying a license.

However, they have been lenient in collecting where amusements, lectures, etc., were sponsored by the P. T. A. or other organizations. So we have the spectacle of a circus coming to town sponsored by the authorities of the High School to evade the payment of the license tax which should be paid to the town.

The Legion, ostensibly 100 percent American, sponsors a circus, not only thereby expecting to evade the license tax due the town, but advertises a Sunday performance which is against the law, as circuses are not an exception to the provisions of Section No. 1321 of the Kentucky Statutes.

A boy comes to town with straw-berries in a pickup truck, and is told by the town marshal he must pay a license tax in order to sell his berries.

Are there any taxpayers in this town who have nerve enough and patriotism enough to enjoin the performance of a circus which does not pay a license, and one which not only does not pay a license but attempts to hold a performance in violation of Section No. 1321 Kentucky Statutes? I'll help.

NATIONAL YOUTH ADMINISTRATION

Paintsville, Kentucky, April 30, 1938
Miss Gillian Henry
WPA Nursery School Supervisor
West Liberty, Kentucky
Dear Miss Henry:

During my recent visit with you I was very much impressed to find such a splendid interest existing in your supervision of the two NYA girls who are assisting you in the nursery school. This is a very beneficial training for these girls and perhaps their desire and interest in this vocation helps to make their work practical and interesting.

I am mailing to you the book on "Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick" by the authority of Miss Boone, the County Health Nurse of Johnson County. The book can be used for the purpose of a more adequate knowledge of practical nurse training for the NYA girls, however, certain requirements from the American Red Cross is not in accordance with the use of the text book for a class of instruction.

I appreciate your cooperation with the NYA girls program in Morgan County. You have a standing invitation at your convenience to visit their centers with some suggestions on practical training, and we shall be looking forward to your visits.

Yours very truly,
ALICE GARLAND, District 4,
NYA Area Supervisor.
